Thanks Tom. As you know, during our telephone conference, I indicated that I would confer with my client and get back to you. However, regardless of the issues of the scope of the inspection, I am out of town on a long scheduled mini-vacation out of the country. Therefore, I am not even available on April 2. I hope to have a response at to the issue of the scope of the inspection to you today or tomorrow. Thanks, Mike Leonard.

Mr. Leonard,

This confirms our earlier conversation today wherein I requested that we conduct the R. 34 inspection of the premises April 2 in the afternoon, while I am in Chicago with Plaintiffs' expert. Like with the prior inspection we scheduled, but you refused, the inspection would take place along with others to reduce the costs of travel time and expenses by dividing them among several files. By refusing to agree to the inspection, you will thereby cause the expenses to be undivided and therefore increased for your case. In my briefs, I have cited ample authority to support the position that we have the right to conduct a full inspection of the entire premises with regard to barriers related to my client's disability. Your insistence that the inspection be drastically limited is unreasonable and not based on law. In the event your client refuses to agree to the inspection, per our conversation, I will promptly file a renewed motion to compel.
